SKI FOR EASTER SEALS

Saturday, February 2, 1980, will mark the third annual "Ski For Easter Seals" sponsored by KRSP Radio and Mountaineer Sports. This special event will feature a downhill marathon at Snowbird and a cross country ski marathon at the Brighton Ski Touring Center. All proceeds from the event will benefit handicapped children and adults of Utah.

Last year, 269 participants raised $13,967 with 73-year-old Ed Phelps of Kaysville, Utah, leading the pack with $1,992. This year the goal is set for $25,000 and to beef up the incentive, Mountaineer Sports is donating $5,000 worth of prizes, shirts, gift certificates and much more. In addition, Snowbird and Brighton merchants are contributing 50 prizes to be raffled.

Easter Seal Society spokesman Doug Beck said the event is open to all citizens regardless of ability. Participants are asked to obtain sponsors to help support the wonderful work of Easter Seals. Individuals raising $50 or more will ski free and receive a shirt, souvenir bib, boot rack, certificate, and a chance at over $5,000 worth of prizes.

Registration forms, necessary to enter the event, may be picked up at any of the Mountaineer Sports stores, all 7-Eleven stores in Salt Lake, and Easter Seals, 4868 South State in Murray. For information call (801) 262-6459.

Mountaineering Ramblings

By Bob McCaig

This is kind of the off season for scheduled mountaineering trips, but I will try to setup at least one climb each month. For those unfamiliar with our winter mountaineering activities, we usually spend Thursday evenings at the Bird Cage tavern. The usual group gathers between 8:30 and 9:30 and stays until the money runs out or the bartender quits furnishing free pitchers. Informal ski tours and climbs are often planned.

Nominations 1980

By John Gottman

Our annual Nominations Dinner will be held January 12, 1979 as discussed in the schedule. Nominations will remain open until the completion of that portion of the business at the dinner. Until this time any member who has attended eight WMC events and who is willing can be nominated.

The nominating committee contacted many people and someone who is both qualified and interested stepped forward for most positions open. They are:

President - Mike Treshow
Secretary - Penny Smith
Treasurer - Dick Honn
Conservation - Mike Omana
Entertainment - Dorothy Holland
Membership - Ilka Allers
Hiking - John Riley
Lodge - Dennis Dougherty
Publications - No volunteers
Trustee - Dale Green or Stuart Ogden

Except for Trustee, the committee stopped with only one candidate since no one contacted us expressing interest in running for open positions and because finding candidates was not easy. Persons who are interested should contact Dorothy Holland at 943-7231 or enter the race when additional nominations are requested at the Nominations Dinner.

As a final point, if you are interested but do not feel you can take a director position next year, please contact the newly elected director(s). Individual directors cannot thoroughly cover all the events, issues, hearings, etc. necessary to keep us moving in directions we favor. Much help is needed.

Feb. 23-24 OVERNIGHT SKI TOUR-UINTAS An intermediate ski tour on the Uintas' north slope. Meet at Holubar at 6:00 A.M. Registration is required--limit is fifteen.

YOUR LODGE NEEDS YOUR FINANCIAL HELP!

LODGE RESTORATION FUND RAFFLE

by Ann McDonald

THE RAFFLE IS ON!! Lots of Prizes... Fun... $$$ for the Lodge!

This is your opportunity to do YOUR part in supplying the necessary funds to continue the Lodge Restoration Project. The Lodge is the Mountain Club's most valuable possession monetarily, historically, and for your all-season enjoyment and use.

Sometime in January you will each receive a ticket book containing ten $1.00 tickets. Please consider it your responsibility to sell them to your non-Mountain Club friends, or buy the ten tickets yourself and have ten chances at all the prizes we are accumulating.

Send your ticket stubs and money for them to:

WASATCH MOUNTAIN CLUB RAFFLE
c/o Timberline Sports
3155 Highland Drive
Salt Lake City, Utah 84106

The drawing will be held at the end of March during a SUPER AFTER-SKI BASH. Date, time and place will be announced in February's Rambler. Your presence will not be required to win--but DO COME, and bring your friends.

We are now in the process of obtaining prizes. You may be called upon to help with getting prizes donated, calling people who have not sent in their ticket stubs or to perform other miscellaneous duties which will have to be performed by someone.

Please help make this a great success by giving it your all. If we all get behind this project 100% we shall not have to keep fund raising all year.

THANKS.

TRIP Talk talk talk talk ta

Thanksgiving Grand Gulch Backpack

By John Veranth

Thanksgiving morning found us at the Kane Gulch Ranger Station (closed), discussing the weather, trail conditions, and the fate of one car which was known to have left Salt Lake but had not arrived. After some discussion, we proceeded to the Bullet Canyon trailhead where we met three Outward Bound instructors who were starting on a planned Grand Gulch-Slickhorn Canyon loop. (Good luck!)

The trail down Bullet Canyon was uneventful until we came to the steep narrows which had become impassable with ice. Diligent scouting by our leader revealed that the ice could be bypassed by a traverse along the ledges followed by a descent on steep sloping friction holds. "How will the route be to get back up if it snows?" "Difficult." How true!

We continued another hour and set up camp followed by various Thanksgiving feasts depending on the ingenuity of the cooks.

Morning announced itself with the sound of heavy snow falling on the tents. A conference around the campfire concluded that the best course would be to start back before the snow got worse. After slogging and sliding back up the canyon we found that our descent route around the ice was snow covered and yesterday's friction holds were now unstable. A diagonal crack system was found that offered a possible alternative; however, the route started with a rounded blank bulge with no obvious holds. Fortunately, the party we had passed the previous day was continuing into the canyon using the same crack and we were able to toss them our rope (a 3/8" line brought for lashing the pack to the car) and fix a hand line thus avoiding an awkward shoulder stand to get over the bulge.

After we got past the ice the route was straightforward and quite pleasant once the sun came out. By the time we reached the cars we all decided to make up for the shortened trip with a Thanksgiving pot luck dinner and reunion hosted by Cate. Soaking in the hot pool after dinner we all concluded that Kermit and Marilyn had organized a great trip despite the weather.

Canyon hiking routes that are uncomplicated in dry summer weather can prove extremely difficult in winter. The beauty of the desert canyons in winter justifies the effort. On future trips, carrying a small assortment of mountaineering gear would increase the options available when steep snow and ice are encountered.

Participants: Kermit and Marilyn Earl (leaders), Cate Flanagan, Earl Book, Bruce Pietsch, Wayne Slagle, Barbara Pollyea, Jim Sweeney, Ilka Allers, Russell Patterson, John and Martha Veranth.

Zion Car Camp      By One Dog (The Other Thanksgiving Trip)

Looking back over our trip, we had a lot to be thankful for. Myself, having a fantastic dinner in Salt Lake, headed for Zion Canyon and "Watchman" campground, next to the Virgin River.

Others had arrived earlier, Thursday, and hiked to Zion Canyon Overlook for openers. Those with pat hands called with happy hour and dinner. The evening was beautiful and the night, a 3 dog night or one warm body was a winner.

Friday morning, shafts of golden sunlight entered the campground and the frozen water was ready to be transformed into hot coffee royal (just a spot of brandy), the outer- and inner-body temperature seeking a common demoninator.

Angels Landing was our morning goal. With ice on the ledge only four hikers made it all the way. The view was beyond description. The Great White Throne and Angels Landing keep watch over the beautiful amphitheater called Temple of Sinawava at the end of the canyon. Snow rested quietly on the towering fingers of Navajo sandstone reaching out into the canyon below.

Returning to the Grotto Picnic Area for a bit to eat and several cold drinks, the wind was busy moving millions of crackling leaves from one place to another.

One group attacked the Zion Narrows and the other returned to our base camp, where coming across a field, was a WMC climber, carrying rope and all. She wanted a ride to her car and motel. I gladly obliged.

Someone suggested Grafton for fun, where some beautiful ladies had transgressed and Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid had slept. Not being one to miss spectacles of outdoor life, I went, only to find their epitaph in a nearby cemetery reading "killed by Indians, 1866". It wasn't the Indians I minded, but the age.

After a great dinner (everything tastes good outdoors), we retreated to LaVerkin and the hot springs (not a bed) and heated swimming pool by the Virgin River. In two black grottos where we lay, steam boiled up into a starlit night.

Everyone slept well that night, a 2 dog night or one warm body. Sleeping late can be the start of a wonderful day.

Today, the schedule called for Snow Canyon State Park. We explored the lava caves, which were occupied by Shivwits Indians long ago, cinder cones over 1,000 years old, which spewed forth lava, now standing in black chunks side by side on the underlying redrock beds and Johnson's Arch (named after Maude Johnson, a pioneer woman).

Several stopped at Jacob Hamblin's House, restored and neat as a pin, quite a contrast to the ghost town of Grafton.

A few went to the hot springs and others to happy hour with the climbers at the motel (they were really roughing it)?

The local grapevine said 101 Rancho was the place tonight, band and all. Being logical WMC folks we headed for the hot springs and wine first. At 101 Rancho we were unable to enter due to a $2.00 cover charge. It was back to the tents, a 2 dog night or one warm body.

Sunday was another beautiful day, a good breakfast and off to Hidden Canyon. A few stayed in the campground to pick pecan nuts and rest from the night's activities.

A rumor was heard about snow from Cedar City to Salt Lake, which proved false, but we did arrive home before dark, Sunday evening (Amen).

Leader: Dennis Dougherty; hikers: Carolyn Hickam, Ruth Hoppe, Joy Ray, Todd and Sharon Freshwater, Blanka Stejskal, John Olson, Gert Kristiansen, Larry Hoskins, Becky Burrage, Diane Erickson, One Dog and two climbers.

Lambs Canyon—Murdock Peak— Park City

By John Walton

The hike was a nice way to finish off the mild fall weather, and served as a good introduction to hiking in the Wasatch. The route went up Lambs Canyon to Murdock Peak and from there along the ridge separating Salt Lake and Summit counties to Thaynes Canyon, then down to Park City. The changing views of the Wasatch along the ridge were excellent, as were the smell and color of leaves on the ground. The small size of the group helped keep the pace healthy, making for a 7½-hour trip with stops for lunch and a reconnoiter of an old mine building in Thaynes Canyon.

Participants: Dave Smith, Steve Megler, John Veranth, and John Walton.

Broads Fork

The leaders almost had the followers outnumbered for this trip (2:5). With such a strong leadership ratio, how could we lose? We forged on in spite of menacing weather and were rewarded with a wonderful view of clouds moving off and on Twin Peaks (The view was from below--our leaders sensibly opted to avoid the top that day).

Besides the scenery, we were provided with a bountiful supply of wine, candy, and cookies (you can be our leader any time, John).

The group split for the trip home. Oscar Robison and John Veranth cut through a field of snow, over a ridge, and down via Lake Blanche. We had a mild taste of winter's snow flurries--enough to make me think this would be a great place to try again soon on skis!

Participants: John Marks and Oscar Robison (leaders), Karen Putzy, Ilka Allers, John Veranth, Fred Norton, and Becky Burrage.

Silver Fork—Honeycomb Loop

Our group set off from Solitude under threatening skies and made it to Silver Fork Mine in time to wait out a rain shower in the tunnel. We continued on up, stopping at the Prince of Wales Mine to examine its remains and speculate on its operations. Lunch on top of the Honeycomb Cliffs was shortened by some brief snow flurries, and we continued over Honeycomb Pass. After a brief inspection of the Woodlawn Mine we completed our loop basically dry and invigorated by the crisp fall scenery.

The group included: Charlie and Allene Keller, Blanka Stejskal, Ed McDaniel, Wendy Finsterwalder, Russel Olsen, Betse Davies, Fred Zoerner, Jana Stevens, John Riley and Shelley Hyde.

Big Beacon to Healy's Bar and Grille

By Cynthia Campbell

The day was cool and crisp with high misty clouds touching the mountains. Our trek began with a gentle hillside at the mouth of Emigration Canyon but quickly became a steep incline. What a beautiful view from the top of the ridge beneath the beacon. The valley and Stansbury Mountains were visible as the clouds dispersed letting the sunlight through.

After a brief lunch stop we continued the hike along the ridge. Our leaders home, visible only as a white square below, was our final destination.

How wonderful it felt to be greeted as we arrived at Healy's by George with delicious snacks and hot spiced wine which warmed us all. The perfect end to a great hike and a beautiful day.

Winter Keep-in-Shape Bargain

Work off those holiday meals and stay in shape with a loosely structured exercise program providing use of a well-equipped weight lifting room and gym.

Class is held at South High School, 1575 South State Street, Monday and Wednesday from 6 to 8 p.m. Cost for eight weeks is $15. Registration begins January 7--ask for the Bodybuilding Class.

For further information contact South Community School, 485-8642 (5-9:30 p.m.) or John Veranth, 278-5826.

Interested in Mountain Climbing?

Have we got a show for you! "The View from Whole Mountain" is a two-part, multi-media presentation which separates the various aspects of mountaineering and then brings them together into a cohesive personal experience.

Jeff Lowe, author of "The Ice Experience" and the man Sports Illustrated called "an acknowledged master of the sport," will present a sixty-minute slide show which includes bouldering in Colorado; rock climbing on the Moose's Tooth; winter climbs in the Tetons and Scotland; alpine-style climbing on 23,400' Latok I; and a solo ascent of Nepal's most beautiful and holy mountain, Ama Dablam.

Two films will be shown. "The First Ascent of Bridalveil Falls," is, as the title suggests, a record of the the pioneer climb of this now-classic waterfall. "The Prayer Book" documents one of Colorado's most beautiful and difficult rock climbs.

After the show, Jeff Lowe will be available for discussion and will autograph copies of "The Ice Experience."

Sponsored by Holubar and U of U Outdoor Recreation Program. $2.50 in advance at Holubar, $3.00 at door.

January 22, 7:30 p.m. on the U of U campus.
Call Holubar for exact location.
