From the President....by Michael Budig

Winter is sure off to a roaring start in the Wasatch- and the Mountain Club lodge is a beacon of warmth and atmosphere on the slopes. Recent parties at the lodge have confirmed the value of the lodge as the heart and centerpiece of the club and a link to the history, traditions and past of the Club.

The Nominations /Awards banquet will be held on Saturday, January 22. For the third year in a row, the event will be at the Jewish Community Center- with entertainment provided by the Disgusting Brothers. The Jewish Community Center is quite a beautiful facility and I encourage members to attend- it will be a fun event- and an interesting chance to try to recognize people dressed in unusual attire.

I want to thank the nominations committee (Gloria Watson, Brett Smith and Vince Desimone) for their work in selecting and persuading members to run for office. Members who may be inclined are encouraged to contact the nominating committee to volunteer to run.

At the press deadline, the slate of candidates is as follows:

Treasurer: Shirley Streff Secretary: Patty O'Keefe Entertainment: Open Information: open

Publication: Vivian Lee, Heidi Schubert

Lodge: Dave Rabiger (and probably Zig Sondelski and/or Clayton Rand)

Winter Sports: open

Mountaineering: Craig Homer

Trustee: Linda Kosky Biking: Audrey Rindfleisch

Hiking: Donn Seeley

Conservation: Will McCarvill

Membership: Carol Ann Langford and Dudley McIlhenny

President: Michael Budig

The Board approved purchase of a new snowthrower for the lodge- hopefully this will work much better than the previous snowthrower and allow snowclearing operations to keep up. It appears likely to get a serious test right away.

From the Boating Director:

We'll be having the Permit Party in January. Please stay tuned to the Rambler and the Boating Email list for the dates. We need a big turn out so we have a number of people applying for permits. No permits No Boating. Below is a list of where to apply for permits.

WINTER SPORTS RATINGS

Here is the listing of snowshoe and ski tours and the ratings according to difficulty. All mile numbers are ROUND TRIP, from beginning to end. Unless otherwise noted, all trips are in the BACKCOUNTRY. These types of trips may be rated 'Not too difficult' (NTD), but more often are rated 'Moderate' (MOD), or 'Most difficult' (MSD). They more likely encounter avalanche paths, and generally cross areas with steeper terrain. Avalanche beacons and shovels are strongly recommended for these type of trips, and may be required by the trip organizer (see trip descriptions). Typical examples are Powder Park of Catherine's Pass. A trip labeled TOUR is one which mostly follows along a groomed trail, or above an un-groomed road surface and generally has a gentler grade, and less risk of encountering avalanche paths. These types of trips are often rated NTD, but occasionally are rated MOD, or even MSD to length. Avalanche beacons are recommended on a more selected basis. Typical examples are Beaver Creek, or Norway Flats. 'Ski mountaineering' (SKI-MTN) is a rating for difficult trips which, in addition to snow gear and avalanche beacons, include boot climbing on exposed terrain and require self-arrest skills. The rating is determined by the most difficult technical requirement of the trip. For example, Pink Pine is short, but it is quite steep, so it is rated MSD.

* Avalanche knowledge is a prerequisite for winter travel. A new rating category for AVALANCHE AWARENESS has been compiled by the Winter Sports Committee to help you assess the relative risk for each trip. Legend- A! - trip crosses major avalanche path and/or multiple avalanche paths; A - trip crosses known avalanche path; M - trip involves minimal risk of avalanches.

Editorial Note: Snowshoe and Ski ratings above are listed in order of difficulty, according to this algorithm:

Difficulty = (M) + (3K). M is the round trip miles including tenths, if any. K is the thousands of feet of altitude gain including tenths, if any. For example: Catherine's Lake at 4.4 miles round trip and 1200 feet of altitude gain:

(M)+(3xK)
(4.4)+(3x1.2)
(4.4)+(3.6)=8.0

If the outing is labeled as a TOUR, factor the difficulty answer by (0.6). Example: Foreman Trail at 4 miles length and an altitude gain of 900 feet calculates as follows:

(M)+(3xK)x(0.6)
(4)+(3x.9)=6.7
(6.7)x(0.6)=4

Localized trail conditions may vary throughout the season and affect the actual difficulty on any given day (e.g. trail breaking, icy, bare spots, wind, warm, cold).

TRIP REPORT:

PATAGONIA by Tom Walsh

Better late than never, right? This article describes a trip to Patagonia that Christel Sysak organized last spring, and it turned out to be a trip that really raised the bar for fun, memorable travel experiences and awesome scenery!

Our group of 8 was mostly uninformed about Patagonia – about all I knew was that it was windy, far away, and had good fishing. Located about as far South as Baghdad is East, the southernmost point of Patagonia is only 785 miles from Antarctica. Due to its location at the bottom of the Pacific basin skirting Antarctica, the weather is frequently windy and wet with icy storms blowing in fast and unpredictably. I used to think that Patagonia was an arid flat plain covered with grazing sheep — partly true, however, we soon learned that mountains and glaciers dominate the scene. Beside the North and South Poles, the world's 3rd largest reserve of fresh water is the ice cap on the southern Andean peaks of Patagonia.

We landed in Puenta Arenas, the world's southernmost city and the gateway to Patagonia. From this point on the North coast of the Straits of Magellan, we traveled to Puerto Natales. The impression that formed in our minds as we traveled was the vast emptiness – there were no advertising signs on the road, no litter, no local access roads, just miles and miles of plains dotted with an occasional estancia. At lunch time, we stopped at an estancia where raising sheep had mostly been curtailed in favor of catering to travelers. After hot chocolate and sandwiches, we continued to Puerto Natales and unloaded at the quirky Concepto Indigo hostel. It had a 30'rock climbing wall outside and labyrinthian hallways inside. Plumbing was dubious, and some of the beds had mattresses like bags of grapefruit. I have stayed in lots of hotels and do not remember anything about them – I have stayed in just one Indigo hostel and have LOTS of memories about it.

Christel organized the trip around visits to two national parks where we could get up close and personal with Patagonia. At Torres del Paine National Park, we hiked to the moraine below the Park's extraordinary namesake mountains. We stopped on a ridge on the edge of a stunning azure lake at the base of the peaks. The mental image that came to mind was that I was a tiny germ at the base of a mighty row of canine teeth—long, smooth, pointy, and sharp. How do rock climbers ascend these things?

It was said that we might see guanacos, a grazing animal that resembles a llama. Our first sighting was at the entrance to Torres del Paine Park. We tumbled all over each other trying to get a picture of one. Later we encountered herds of them grazing with no apparent anxiety about proximity of humans with cameras. After a couple days, it got so that spotting a guanaco was about as common as seeing a fencepost. There was a lot of talk about spotting the rare and elusive huemul, which is the world's smallest deer. The writer claimed to have spotted one, however, our local tour guide said the animal was most likely a coyote. There was no disagreement about the spotting of a Magellanic Woodpecker, however. It's the world's largest woodpecker, about the size of a raven or maybe larger, with a bright red topknot. We saw one of these badboys in the process of chopping down a tree about 50 yards from our hiking trail. Any woodpecker tough enough to peck holes large enough to insert a fist into has got to be impressive!

After our trek to Torres del Paine, we hiked to Lago Grey and boarded an excursion boat that hauled us across the lake to the terminus of Grey Glacier. The names were perfect – the sky was grey, the lake water was greyish, the ice was a bluish grey. Being close to water level, we had to crane our necks to look up to at the spectacular pillars of ice in front of us. We were fortunate to have been at the right place and time to witness the calving of a medium sized iceberg. Later in our cruise, our crew fished a barrel-sized berg from the lake and chipped it into chunks suitable to cool our complimentary drinks of scotch or pisco (a local drink that is sort of a cross between wine and tequila). Water is so pure in Patagonia that it's OK to drink from any stream or lake without fear of dreadful pathogens like giardia.

After our introduction to the glacier world, we traveled from Chile to Argentina via bus and trekked to a tent city provided by our local guide company. Our excursion for the next day was hiking on a glacier and climbing an ice wall. Our Argentinean guide, Juan, and his helper showed us how to handle crampons to avoid gouging out our Achilles tendons. The glacier seemed like a living being with gurgling water and beams of reflected light glinting around randomly. Juan showed us how to slam the ice ax exactly right so it would hold our weight, but not be set so deep that it was a problem to extract. In our heads we knew that our little 40-foot wall was no big time ice climb like Bridal Veil Falls, but in our hearts we deluded ourselves into feeling that it was a real challenge---and it probably was for those of us who do no climbing, let alone ice climbing!

The second major park we visited was Los Glaciares National Park in Argentina. It is from there that climbers gain access to some of the toughest and most impressive mountains in South America. We were camped in an area where we could see Mount Fitzroy and Cerro Torre. Weather was perfect for taking pictures, with the light of the sunset evolving from yellow to orange to fuchsia. The next day the sky was clear so we could shoot yet more pictures in natural daylight. Juan said it was clear enough to see the Compressor Route from which Cerro Torre had been climbed in 1974 by Casimiro Ferrari.

We were uncommonly lucky with the weather – out of ten days, it only rained two. We were told it was more typical to have rain and wind at least half the time. Once while we were hiking on a ridgeline, a roaring noise arose from the west. In a minute a gale force wind was tearing at our clothes. Leading by example. Juan had us drop to all fours to weight ing by example, Juan had us drop to all fours to wait out the wind in a push up position.

Christel really outdid herself in planning a memorable and beautiful trip. Somehow she managed to find us an amazing young female guide for the Chilean portion of our trip, who was actually German, but who spoke English fluently and Spanish like a native and whom we all fell in love with before we had spent a day with her! The lucky participants in this adventure were Christel Sysak, Jeff Schreyer, Ray Duda, Lorraine Lovell, Holly Smith, Tom Walsh, Barb Hanson, and our guest photographer, Alex Kravtsov.

Party writeup by Frank Bernard

It was a bright and sunny day at Brighton and a festive evening at the lodge for the 8th Annual Christmas party on Saturday, Dec 4th. Although there was a lot of snow on the ground the snowshoe to Katherine Pass went quickly as it hadn't snowed recently and the trail was well trod. Lots of powder for off trail descents for those who get their kicks that way heading down slope on snowshoes. It's a great summertime hike and equally gorgeous in the winter - big pines, craggy rocks, mountain peaks- all the stuff for a nice outdoors experience.

Most were back at the lodge by 5 PM, gathered around the crackling fire place being convivial or finishing up the cooking and prep work in the kitchen. Folks continued to trickle in, several with guitars for the evening Christmas caroling. Several dozen of us were enjoying life at the lodge, sipping our favorite beverages, renewing old friendships and catching up on summer adventures by the time the turkeys and ham came out of the ovens and the rest of the potluck dinner was put out for dinner. Lots of yummy stuff - as a frequent participant in WMC potlucks over the past ten years, I'd say it was well above par. Congratulations to those who brought the great food to share.

Post dinner we sang carols around the fireplace. Four guitarists and Jeanine the pianist did their best to stay ahead of the eager singers, giving loud voice to many old standards. Some of them even sounded pretty good. One of the participants insisted we finish up by joining hands and doing a circle dance - Rocking Around the Christmas Tree definitely made the floor shake and put a final smile on everyone's face. Apparently it was an old family tradition and it certainly capped the singing.

Particular thanks to the organizers, Christine Allred, Frank Bernard, Bart and LaRae Bartoloma, Carol Ann Langford and Dudley McIlhenny. They brought and cooked the meat, made sure everyone had a plate and a place to sit, and cleaned it all up for the next lodge party when it was over- of course with the help of many of the participants. See you again next year and if you'd like to be one of the organizers feel free to contact us.

A Note of Caution

Melvin Denis was a kind-hearted, enthusiastic, athletic, brilliant, and handsome young man. Melvin was staying in a spare bedroom in my basement while he was earning TWO simultaneous doctorate degrees in cutting edge medical research. He was due to become a U.S. citizen in a few days.

I remember Melvin's smiling face and the bounce in his walk as he set out Saturday morning, Dec 11 for a day of fun in the mountains. But I will never hear Melvin laugh again. Melvin was buried alive that day as he showshoed in Mineral Fork basin. His body was discovered by rescue dogs the next evening.

Many of our showshoers in the WMC have told me they are immune from avalanche danger because they don't go deep in the backcountry, and they don't ski the steepest of slopes. Melvin was on a slope that was almost flat, but he was hammered from above. This tragedy could happen to anyone. If you participate in winter activities and have not had avalanche training, or if you don't wear a beacon and shovel, or if you don't read the avalanche report every morning before you go out, please make a promise to yourself that you will change your ways. Educate yourself about avalanches. There have been enough fatalities in the backcountry this year. Please don't take chances.

JAN 8 SAT SNOWSHOE: MAYBIRD GULCH (MOD). Maybird is more a state of mind than a place. It looks different each time, because the trail there is ambiguous. In fact, there is no real trail. It provides a spectacular view of a cirque with the Pfeifferhorn in the background and is one of WMC Snowshoeing veteran Larry Nilssen's (572-3964) favorite destinations. As usual, bring all the essentials, including food, water, and a beacon. Meet Larry at Butler Elementary at 9:00 am.

A new tour that covers almost 3 miles and gains about 2,500 feet, Barb Hansen (485-0132) will lead you on one of her favorite trips- to a bowl of jagged limestone cliffs with a great view. Since this is a lower elevation tour, snow conditions may require a change. Bring beacon and shovel if you have them. This tour is in the Mount Olympus Wilderness area, which has a limit on group size (Limit: 10). Above 10, we would need to split out a second group and ask for a volunteer to be an organizer.
