From the President by Heidi Schubert

While spring and summer bring the best chances to explore the Wasatch Mountains, the close proximity to the population of the Salt Lake Valley also means these are the months when the mountains suffer their heaviest damage. This year will bring additional challenges since the heavy snow fall means that trails will remain wetter than normal. Late season skiers, and early season hikers, bikers and climbers may be trying to use trails which are wet and muddy.

Please consider trail damage when determining the location of your next outdoor adventure. Don't bike on wet trails. Hikers should wear waterproof boots and gaiters and walk in the middle of the trail. Walking on the edges of the trail only widens the mess. Your boots can be cleaned when you get home – bring a plastic bag and a change of footwear for the car.

Enjoying the Wasatch is not a right – it is a privilege. The Twin Peaks and Lone Peak wilderness are some of the most heavily used forests in the nation. As users of the Wasatch, we are also bound to protect the beauty and access of the wilderness for generations to come.

Please join the WMC for trail service days several times over the course of the summer. The WMC joins Save Our Canyons on the second Saturday of each summer month (May, June, July & Sept) for trail work in the Wasatch Front. Additionally, 2008 National Trail Day is on June 7th this year and REI and the Park City Mountain Trails Foundation will sponsor trail building and restoration projects.

Additional weed pulls, river restoration and trail work outside the Wasatch front sponsored by Volunteers for Outdoor Utah will provide additional opportunities at different skill levels and supporting different interests. Search the on-line calendar for conservation activities.

Please consider joining at least one of these events if not more than one. You certainly value the hours you spend exercising, relaxing and playing in the Wasatch – but the Wasatch needs you as well.

See you on the trail.
Heidi Schubert

WMC Purpose (Article II of the WMC Constitution)

The purpose shall be to promote the physical and spiritual well being of its members and others by outdoor activities; to unite the energy, interests, and knowledge of students, explorers, and lovers of the mountains, deserts, and rivers of Utah; to collect and disseminate information regarding the Rocky Mountains in behalf of science, literature, and art; to explore and picture the scenic wonders of this and surrounding states; and to foster awareness of our natural areas including their plant, animal, and bird life.

Trip Pictures: Fool's Peak

The annual April Fool's Day hike/snowshoe to Fool's Peak appears to have been a success. If you'd like to be a fool, be sure to join the hike next year! The three fools from this year were, below, left to right, Alex Rudd, Walt Haas, and Bard Lefevre. They braved the weather and made it to the summit (as well as back down safely)!

The WMC Lodge

The WMC club lodge is tucked away in a grove of evergreens at the top of Big Cottonwood Canyon. It is used for a variety of WMC social functions but can also be rented out for personal use on a full- or half-day basis. Renovation to the lodge included the installation of flushing toilets and a shower. Running water! The two dormitory-style rooms on the second floor provide sleeping accommodations for about 20 people. Go to www.wasatchmountainclub.org/lodge/Lodge\_pictures.htm to view pictures of the infamous lodge. The kitchen contains a stove and refrigerator, but—you guessed it—it is not stocked with food, utensils or other culinary items. All users of the lodge are expected to clean up the lodge after use. Contact Dave & Susan Rabiger at (801) 964-8190 for reservations.

The Lodge needs constant tender loving care, and WMC members have come to the rescue since 1929. Come donate your carpentry skills or just help clean. Call Bob Myers at (801) 485-9209 or send an e-mail to caretakerwmc@yahoo.com to volunteer. Ask for a list of very specific items that need your attention and the hand tools and equipment needed to get the job done. You need not be a member to volunteer. (Warning: Associating with WMC members and participating in WMC activities can become addicting. Improved health, positive attitudes, and long-lasting friendships are also possible side effects.) We look forward to seeing you at the Lodge! Please give back and keep your eyes open for upcoming WMC Service Days. The most up-to-date activities are posted on the website (see inside front cover).

Club members can earn up to a $50 voucher by participating in lodge service projects!

Directions to the Lodge

Want to decrease your carbon footprint?

Starting in July the Wasatch Mountain Club will participate in a University of Utah program allowing anyone to buy wind power at $3/mgh (megawatt hour). If you really want to put more wind on the electricity grid you'll want to buy more wind, not spend more money. Plus, the university program is tax deductible. To find out how to donate, go to <http://windpower.utah.edu>.

Conservation Notes

John Veranth

It looks like both the extension of the Wasatch Wilderness proposal and the Washington County legislation are becoming active.

The proposal to extend the Wasatch wilderness is being pushed by Save Our Canyons and includes many elements proposed by Salt Lake City Water Department several years ago. It is being favorably viewed by Representative Matheson and it could move into committee and beyond this year. In our view, this completes what was started 30 years ago with the Lone Peak Wilderness Area, and continued in the 1980's when Twin Peak and Mount Olympus Wilderness Areas were designated. The WMC was very active during the campaigns to secure these areas. We even sent Alexis Kelner back to DC to lobby for more wild lands. Deserving areas such as White Pine were eliminated due to pressure from the lift served ski industry and the Wasatch Powderbird Guides. The WMC has always been an outing club with ethics and strong support for preservation. The Wilderness Areas above the valley are prime venue for the outdoor activities that are the focus of the WMC. However, the Wasatch Front population is rapidly increasing and this puts new demands on the nearby National Forest lands.

Wilderness protection is the most dependable way to preserve natural lands. Other alternative ways of protection depend on which administration is in office, what forest supervisor is running the local office and how local politics are swayed by competing interests. All that being said, there is always some loss for gain. Many of our long time members remember driving up White Pine and Lake Blanche in their jeeps and motorcycles before designation. They were not happy to lose this privilege but felt that this loss was compensated for by the gain. Today, it may be necessary to close the Mill D North Fork trail to bicycles to add Bear Trap and Willow to the Mt Olympus Wilderness Area. If you have any comments or concerns please contact the Conservation Directors. We recommend that the WMC endorse the Save Our Canyons proposal but will support any good-faith negotiations to resolve specific conflicts while protecting the land.

Senator Bennett has reintroduced Washington County legislation. The proposal designates some wilderness, creates a National Conservation Area, and gives 10% of lands disposal proceeds to Washington County among other items. This money will likely be used to build the water pipeline to Lake Powell so explosive growth will continue in the fastest growing area in the U.S. This year's bill is a considerable improvement over the previous proposal and was responsive to some, but not all, of the environmental groups' concerns. Opinion ranges from "this is a realistic compromise" to the "bill is unacceptable and needs to be substantially improved." As a founding partner in the Utah Wilderness Coalition the WMC will be involved in this issue of state-wide and national significance.

FAINT TRAILS IN THE WASATCH

22. Broads Fork

One of the unanswered questions that arise in the study of Wasatch mountain history relates to the origin of the Broads Fork name. In the early days it was a convention to name a fork or geographic entity after the person who cut a road or trail into it to provide access for timber or building materials, or who was given control of it by the authority of the day, usually the County Court. Examples of this abound in Mill Creek Canyon: Bowman Fork, Porter Fork, Alexander Basin, and Thaynes Canyon, to name a few. Who, then, gave his name to Broads Fork? And was Broad his actual name? In 1877 Nelson Wheeler Whipple, who was living at his sawmill at Whipple Fork, made a journal entry, "I went over the ridge into Broughts fork." In 1893 Frank K. Gillespie, in an application for a water appropriation, called it Brocks Fork. And the following year it was called Borck Fork by the Big Cottonwood Power Company. By 1908 there seemed to be a general agreement that the name was Broads Gulch or Broads Fork. The supposition is that the name came into being when woodsmen cut a trail into the fork to gain access to its source of timber. But exactly who it was who gave his name to the fork remains a mystery.

That Broads Fork was used as a supply of timber is unquestionable. Two trails were cut into the fork and both of them were used in the timber trade. One was a logging slide that runs straight down the slope in typical log slide fashion until near the Big Cottonwood stream, then turned up canyon toward Mill B. The other was a road that went from Mill B up to a presumed logging camp at today's stream crossing. It has become the Broads

Fig. 1. Broads Fork trail between the trailhead and the stream crossing. In the text it is suggested this trail was once a road. Near its upper end (lower part of the figure) the left branch is the trail as it exists today, while the right is the path of the road.

Fork trail that we all know so well today. That this was once a road is evidenced by its width through most of its length. And many places show signs of excavation on the uphill side to create a greater width. This road dates back into the Nineteenth Century; had it been only a trail Nature would have eroded it into a very narrow pathway by this time.

About one thousand feet below the stream crossing the trail makes an abrupt right angle turn and goes straight up the slope. This segment is not part of the road; it is the original logging slide. The road is off in the woods east of the trail; it joins the logging slide at a point about 300 feet below the stream crossing, where an enormous boulder can be seen in a clearing on the east side. Above this point remains of the road can be seen between the trail and the stream. Just below the footbridge the trail seems to turn toward the stream, but then turns again and goes up to the bridge. Here the road used to ford the stream and apparently ended at a logging camp on the other side. Until the footbridge was installed the trail crossed the stream at the same place, a precarious crossing in springtime when stream flows are high. Usually logs and branches were in place to span the flow and help hikers across. It is not likely the road extended beyond this point. The trail above the stream crossing has a different character than that below, implying it never was anything more than a trail.

Going back down to the enormous boulder mentioned above, the road can be followed down through the forest until it joins the trail below the right angle turn. While it is overgrown at spots and cluttered with downfall, the width of the right of way is unmistakable. Were it not for the clutter the road would be an easier and more direct ascent than the trail we use today.

The logging slide can be followed by going down the trail to the right angle turn, where the slide continued on down the slope. Its route is not too apparent for the first short distance, but then it appears with the typical U-shape of logging slides, some places having rocks on each side where they were thrown out of the slide. It descends until close to Big Cottonwood creek, then turns in an up-canyon direction and follows a descending traverse until it ends just above the creek. When the canyon road was expanded and realigned over the years the creek was pushed against the south canyon wall causing erosion and loss of the lowest bit of the logging slide.

About two hundred feet above Big Cottonwood creek, above the point where the logging slide turns up-canyon, it crosses an obvious path or trail running along a contour line. This is the remains of the right of way for the Big Cottonwood Power Company's flume to carry water to its proposed power plant at the mouth of Broads Fork. This was the same company that built the

Stairs Station power plant a short distance down the canyon. In February of 1894 the company secured the Mill B property and in June of the same year filed claims for a water right appropriation and a mill site, a 280-by-725 foot plot to be used for the powerhouse. Water was to be taken from Big Cottonwood creek above the Mill B site and carried in a ditch or flume to a point above the power plant. While the project was not carried to completion, enough work was done on the flume right of way to leave the apparent trail that remains today. It can be followed in a westerly direction only a very short distance before it ends at the edge of the Broads Fork stream. In the other direction it follows a contour line, climbing imperceptibly as it goes up-canyon until it ends at the parking area at the Broads Fork trailhead. At that point there is a large flat that may once have been a storage area for logs for Mill B, but much later, during the mid-Twentieth Century, became a picnic ground. The USGS maps identify it as the "Mill B South Fork Picnic Ground," once a popular place for people to spend an outing in the canyon. Older hikers may well remember coming down the Broads Fork trail and having a birds eye view of the picnickers below.

Fig. 3. Footbridge at Broads Fork stream crossing. Until this bridge was built about thirty years ago the trail crossed the stream at a ford about a hundred feet downstream.

As recent as ten years ago the route along the logging slide and flume trail was wide open, obvious and easy to hike, but since that time there has been a considerable downfall that impedes passage and at a number of places trees have grown over the right of way. At one place the flume trail has completely eroded away for a short distance, making passage interesting, but not impossible. Were it not for these obstacles the logging slide and flume trail could offer an interesting and different route to descend out of Broads Fork, taking one through some mountainside scenery not often visited today.

Broads Fork did not receive much attention from miners and prospectors over the years. There were a number of claims filed in the first two decades of the Twentieth Century, they being located on the ridges on each side of the fork and around "an old lake bed" in the upper basin. But there is no evidence of any amount of work having been done on the claims.

Kings Peak 35th Annual Ski/Mountaineering Tour March 28- 29, 2008

Trip report by Larry and Steve Swanson

Gunsight to the summit of Kings Peak

The prospects in early March looked very promising with all the snow in the Wasatch and the Uintas. A recon trip to Henry's Fork with a half dozen "regulars" revealed the best snow in decades. The snow was very deep and firm in the creek, our favorite route. It was almost hard to find a snow bridge as you could ski anywhere. The peak was relatively blown free of snow. On the eve of the trip the weather forecast looked bleak. Lots of new snow, cold weather, and blustery weather were promised. Little of that materialized, however, as Kings Peak makes its own rules. The night had been mild for camping, a very light skiff of snow made the wax grip perfectly, the sun rose to a bluebird day, and the peak was ready to challenge all comers as usual. Wind was a force to be reckoned with in the basin, with a special emphasis on Gunsight Pass and the upward traverse. Spindrift filled the air at times but the sun was out and it wasn't cold! . Conditions were "firm!" on the traverse and on the peak itself in spots. Nevertheless a record percentage of folks braved the elements and summited. The route out was FAST with a touch of glazing on the still firm track, so most folks exited in daylight. Twenty- two enjoyed one of the best opportunities in years at this classic.

Silver Island Range Trip April 6, 2008

Don Seeley organized a hike to the Silver Island Range, an insanely rugged line of stubby mountains on the west side of the Salt Flats, north of Wendover. They tackled Tetzlaff Peak in the center of the range.

Hikers expected exploratory cross-country hiking and scrambling with possible exposure, plus some spectacular desert scenery. It looks like that's what they got! Tough boots and positive attitudes made for a great experience!

HIKE LISTING & RATINGS TABLE

(Data compiled by Kip Yost 1995)

Time and difficulty ratings are based on a fit hiker hiking in clear weather on dry terrain. Some statistical data are approximates. Your individual results will vary.

Other Factors (one rating point each)

B = Boulder fields or extensive bushwacking

M = Round trip mileage in excess of 15 miles

S = Scrambling

E = Elevation change in excess of 5,000 feet only

R = Ridgeline hiking or extensive routefinding

X = exposure

(W) = Wilderness area, limit 14 (no rating points)

Rating Difficulty Range

0.1 to 4.0 (NTD)= lightly strenuous

4.1 to 8.0 (MOD)= Moderate to very strenuous

8.1 to 11.0 (MSD)= Very strenuous, difficult

11.1+ (EXT)= Very strong, well seasoned hikers only

Organizer: Mark McKenzie 801.913.8439 mark.mckenzie@slcc.edu
Beginner's Trip, Gray's Canyon, Green River. Everyone is welcome to come learn and practice boating safety and river camping skills. This popular, fun, and educational weekend introduces you to the sport of river-running. Experienced people share skills and safety techniques. There are paddle boats, an oar rig, and inflatable kayaks which you can try out. The Green River flows through Gray's canyon just north of the town of Green River. It is about a 2 hour river run, with easy to a little challenging rapids. Perfect for beginners. Skills include personal safety, river rescue, water fights, and how to eat better on the river than in your own home. The trip cost is usually under $100, which includes transportation, food, and equipment: A great deal. In the WMC, leaders of more advanced trips often require a novice to have at least been on one trip. So here's your chance to gain experience. The group leaves Salt Lake Friday afternoon and returns early Sunday evening. Organizer: Rick Thompson 801.255.8058 gone2moab@hotmail.com

The clubs annual 4th of July Payette extravaganza will start by driving up to Boise on Thursday, July 3rd, and setting up camp in the very nice Hot Springs forest service group campsite. Friday we will do two day runs on the Payette and after dinner trek over to Crouch to join in on their raucous 4th of July festivities, a party that must be experienced to be believed. Saturday we will move on to the beautiful and invigorating Cabarton section, capping the day with an optional run down the more advanced South Fork. Then we will drive home on Sunday. (Some of the group will be continuing their Idaho whitewater adventure, and drive on over to Hells Canyon on Sunday, for a Monday launch, and three days on the Snake.) This is one of the most fun trips of the year, and a perfect intro to white water, with car camping, an insane country hoedown party, and a mellow but active river. These are great ducky venues, get your ducks in a row in advance, to try an adventurous step beyond the paddle rafts. Whatever your craft of choice, sign up early, as this trip fills up quickly. The planning meeting for this trip will be held on week earlier, on tuesday June 24, @ 700pm at the boat shed, which is at 4340 south Commerce Dr. (300 west) on the north side of Zims, just up from the MsDonalds.

If you're looking at joining the WMC, check out page 17! Join an activity to see

(to you AND to the club and others)!!!

Hells Canyon July 7-8-9 This trip is designed to sync with the fourth of July Payette trip, which can serve as a great warm up for Hells Canyon trip, and it gets you into the general neighborhood to drive on over on Sunday the 6th. Of course you dont have to do the Payette to join in on the Snake, you could always drive straight up to Hells Canyon and join the group there, but it is a logical sequence, combining two short trips and offers a few more days of great Idaho whitewater while you are up there. The Hells launch will be monday morning, and we will spend three days and two nights on the river, taking off river on Wednesday afternoon, at Pittsburg Landing. We will then drive home on Thursday, although if you needed, or wanted to push it, you could always drive home Wednesday night. Clear cold water, warm sandy beaches, some fun rapids- sign up now, a $50 deposit will secure your place on the trip. The planning meeting will be held one week before, on Tuesday, June 24, at 700 pm @ the boat shed, which is at 4340 South Commerce Dr, on the north side of Zims, just up from the Mc Donalds.

Organizer: Robert Turner 801-467-1129 r46turner@sisna.com

This will be a supported overnight loop trip. It may be a little difficult to pull off (Robert will need some help), but the plan is to meet in Coalville Saturday morning and ride up Chalk Creek to the Mirror Lake Highway and on to Sulphur Campground where our camping gear and food will already be waiting for us to spend the night. On Sunday, we'll ride over Hayden and Bald Mountain Passes, then enjoy about 50 miles of downhill all the way back to Coalville. If all goes well, our gear will be waiting for us there, too. Additional info will be added as we get closer to the trip and things get worked out. Call Robert for more details.
